Messrs. Elliott and Pike also severally opposed the resolution reported from the Committee on Reconstruction. The House resumed the consideration of the Senate resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution. Mr. Lawrence, of Ohio, moved to recommit the resolution to the Committee on Re-Construction, with the instructions of the United States, which shall first apportion direct taxes among the States according to the property in each, and which shall record a portion of the representation among the States on the basis of the number of adult male voters who shall be citizens of the United States. Mr. Lawrence explained his proposition. The present mode of apportioning direct taxes and representation was unjust, and although the result of compromise, it was wrong in principle and unequal in its practical result. By his amendment they would make voters in each State precisely equal. It was not proposed to withhold suffrage from any class of people. It appears that there are upward of 30 cannon at West Point armory. There are some of historical value, and not a few of foreign manufacture, in charge of Capt. An officer suggests that it is not desirable to inscribe on any of these guns evidence of capture as trophtes of war to remain in an academy where young men from all parts of our united and once happy country are to meet and contract friendship. He says it should be our study with these young men to present nothing of an irritable or boastful spirit to be placed constantly before the sight of those whose section of country suffered by rebellion. Let history tell the evils this rebellion has produced and let us through the instrumentalities of the military academy renew its powerful influence in establishing national feelings through instrumentalities of the military academy renew its powerful influence in establishing national feelings through the friendship that are sure to flow from a scholastic fellowship under military training. NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The Commer NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The Commercial's Washington special says the Committee on Ways and Means are divided on Mr. Morrill's bill. A foreign clause will probably be reported unfavorable. It is considered that the bill is virtually lost, and the House is not likely to restore the rejected one its withdrawal. An appeal to Congress will be necessary, as Mr. McCulloch relies upon the success of the foreign loan to carry out the main features of his project for the resumption of specie payments.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Jan. 24.—A row of wooden buildings on 3rd street in this city nearly an entire block in length, was destroyed by fire last night. The fire originated in the German emigrant house through the carreless exposure of coal oil. Four bodies have been taken from the ruins burned beyond identification. They are supposed to be emigrants. One man was rescued from the flames, but so badly burned that his recovery is doubtful. The amount of loss and evidence is not ascertained.

New YORK, Jan. 24.—The Commercial says for the past 16 weeks the receipts of cotton at this city by railroad have averaged 2,681 bales, or at the rate of 140,000 bales per annum. Large amounts have gone by rail direct to Pennsylvania and New England making the total weekly deliveries by rail at the last probably 3,500 bales.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 24.—The execution of Heffernan's murderers will take place at noon on Friday, near Fort Houston. All four will be executed at once. Workmen are now busy engaged erecting scaffolds.

New York, Jan. 24.—The Scotia to day took $337,050 for Europe.

The wool market has ruled steady, with a fair demand during the past week, notwithstanding the fluoritations in gold and general values. It is a noteworthy fact that the late decline in taking round lots of choice staple, with but little hesitation, at sellers' prices; and for very choice select parcels they are paying extreme rates. In fact, for the fancy clips of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, which have all along been held above the market, there is now an active competition, and commission merchants will have no difficulty in disposing of their deserves at satisfactory prices.

The consumptive demand is by no means limited to fine wool, though this description commands relatively high rates. The medium and low grades are beginning to be more inquired for, es-rates. The medium and low grades are beginning to be more inquired for, especially the long stapled varieties, owing to the peculiar style of goods now in vogue both in the foreign and American markets. If the taste of consumers continues to run upon this extreme, it severy likely the popular fever among growers for producing full blooded Saxony and Merino wools will soon be abated. We do not say that such a result is desirable; but it is very evident that since the close of the war, the coarse wools of the West have been too much neglected and forced below their relative value.

coarse wools of the West have been too much neglected and forced below their relative value.

There is no danger, however, that the supply of fine domestic will soon, if ever, be in excess of the wants of consumption. It is indispensable to the class of fabrica required for popular health and comfort during a large portion of the year, and will always be preferred as a matter of taste, for thick clothing, by a large class of wearers who pay but little attention to fashions. The stocks of this description available before the next clip, are being rapidly reduced, and will evidently need to be supplemented by considerable importations before the close of the season.

Fine foreign wools are coming forward slowly from the English market, Unless gold shall materially decline, they can hardly compete to any extent with the domestic article. There is not much here at present, but a moderate stock of Cape in New York, offering at rates corresponding with the price of gold.
